Incident Short Description	Worker tripped over parking bay wheel stop bar
-----------------------------------	--

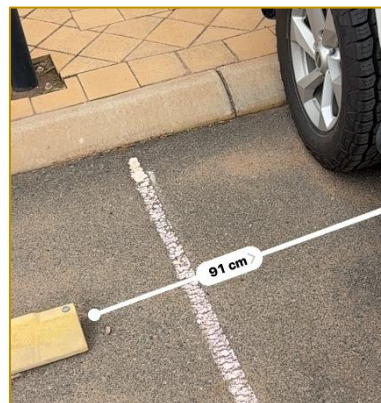

What Happened

At approximately 11:40 AM on 23 March 2026, the worker was preparing to depart the office to undertake an unexpected delivery of supplies to a team member at a heavy vehicle transport operation site 10 kms from the office. They placed the items into the vehicle, which was parked in the office back car park, and intended to return to the office before departure. After closing and locking the vehicle, the worker tripped over the parking bay wheel stop bar in the next parking bay. To prevent themselves falling over onto the pavement, the worker overstretched their left leg. They immediately felt as though they had pulled a muscle. They completed the collection and delivery. The worker was wearing sandals.

Upon returning to the office, the worker reported the incident to the Regional Safety Team. By 1:45 PM, the injury was making the worker feel exhausted. They applied ice to the affected area and went home to rest. The worker chose to monitor the injury overnight and provide additional information the following morning. In the morning, the worker sought medical attention. The Medical Practitioner issued a medical certificate deeming the worker 'unfit for work' for 2 days, resulting in a Lost Time Injury (LTI).
