Incident Short Description:	A Bitumen spray truck operator was injured while underneath trying to repair the park brake.
------------------------------------	--

What Happened:

On Sunday morning at 6.00am, the bitumen spray truck was parked on flat/ even surface about 5m from the road, safety cones were placed around the vehicle, the workers chocked the wheels, and raised the suspension air bags to the highest position to give room under the truck to manoeuvre. Also, a bottle jack was placed under the suspension in case the suspension airbags were to discharge.

As the operator was under the truck, he gave instructions to the supervisor to release the brakes, looking for the brake problem. The truck moved, sliding off the jack. With the truck movement, the operator was struck by the drive shaft causing lacerations to his face and mouth.

The truck chocked and the jack underneath the truck
