What Happened
On Tuesday 8 August 2023 a Worker had a discussion with their line manager and advised that they were suffering pain in their elbow due to using their right arm repetitively dragging documents from one monitor to the other with their mouse during their daily repetitive tasks. They said the discomfort had been going on for months as they carried out their daily tasks, although this had never been reported previously. The Worker obtained medical advice and received treatment which resulted in LTI. The worker was advised to notify their employment agency. A formal investigation by the employment agency has commenced. Once completed, the lessons learnt will be communicated/shared through a final Grey Banner Alert as soon as practicable.
